

What do the best IPB Master Program graduate think of bioipb?

Bogor Agricultural University (Institut Pertanian Bogor, IPB) as one of the best universities in Indonesia makes me proud to be one of its students. I would say that IPB was my first step to study overseas. In addition, I became more confident to take part in a scientific meeting, national and international since studying in the Department of Biology. Support, encouragement, and opportunities are always open from a variety of sources, including our lecturers in the Department.

Student and lecture intimacy (and harmony) that exists in the Department is a very good thing I found in the Department. The Department trained me to become a student who values time, discipline, makes a good cooperation, is honest, and hard work. In my two years of study, the Animal Biosciences Study Program, in particular, made me feel equipped with bioscience skills through field practice, and research laboratories. Studying in the Department already opened my horizon about biosciences and made me always ready to keep the spirit and continue to try new things or challenges. Thanks to the Department that gives me (us) a lot of provision of knowledge and experience as part of my (our) dedication to build the community. Hopefully, the Department will maintain or improve its quality, nationally and internationally.
